" Non-smoking should be established as the norm of social behavior " around the world . the editorial says . through the enactment of laws that limit advertising , boost tobacco prices and promote anti-smoking education . " Smoking prevention programs should reach larger segments of the population , especially children , adolescents and minorities . " According to the American Cancer Society , smoking is responsible for 85 % of the lung-cancer cases among men and 75 % among women . The NCI report attributes the differences in mortality rates by race to different smoking patterns . In comparing changes in mortality rates over the past decade , the NCI study looked only at blacks and whites . Asians and native Americans were n't studied ; Hispanics were included with whites . But the editorial , by Jan Siperstaard of the World Health Organization , notes that tobacco consumption and lung-cancer mortality rates are rising in developing countries . [2201703l]
