

Document 0049

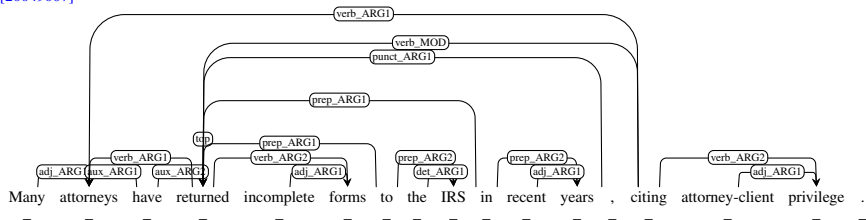

[20049001]

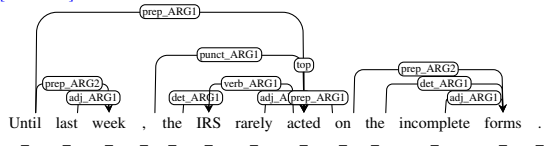

[20049002]

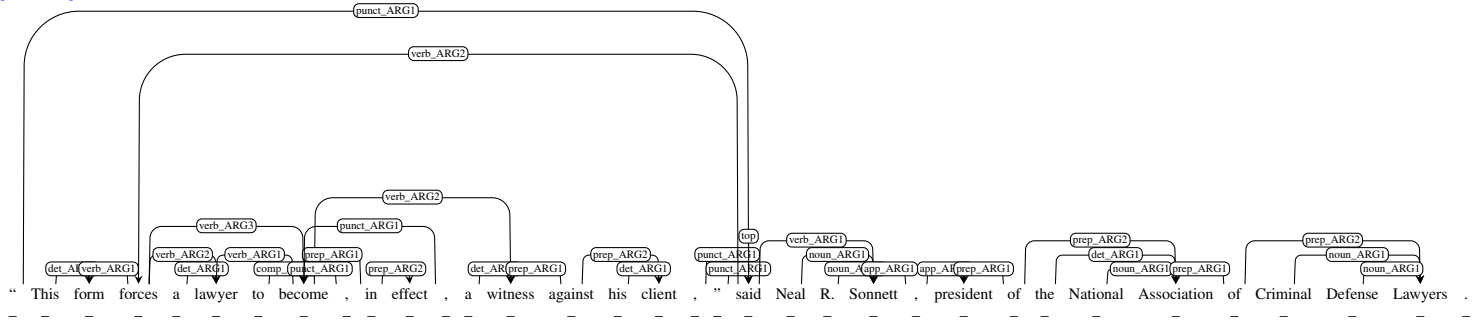

[20049007]

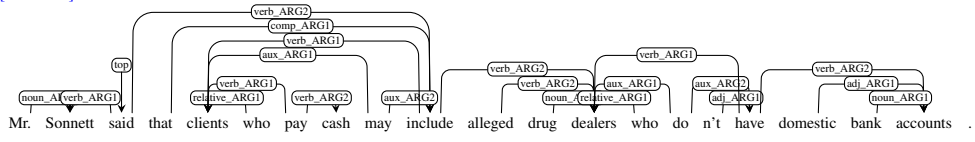

[20049008]

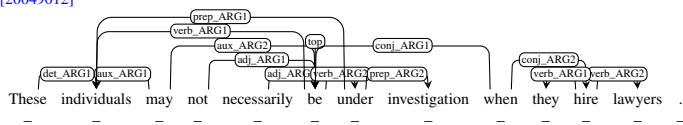

[20049009]

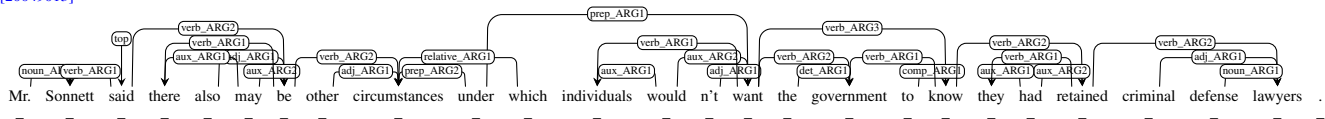

[20049011]

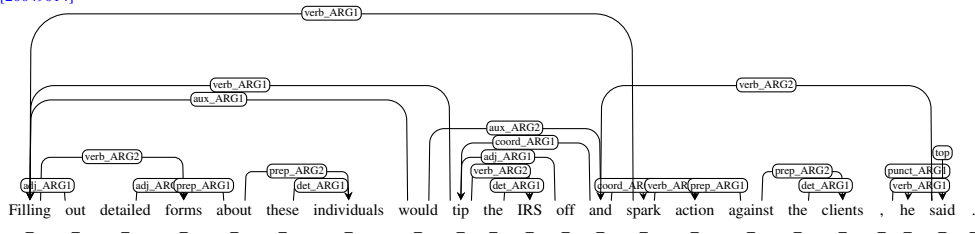

[20049012]

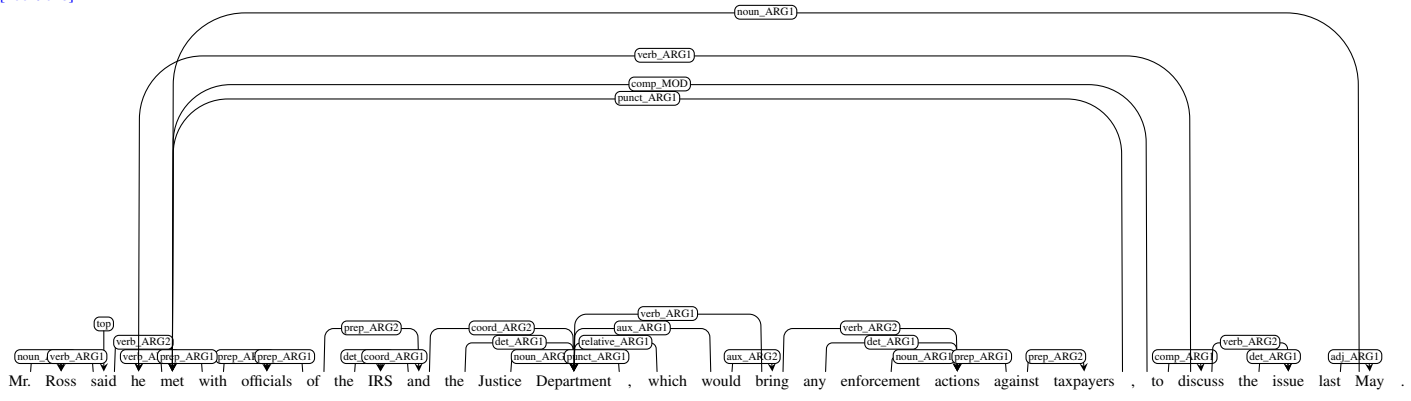

[20049013]

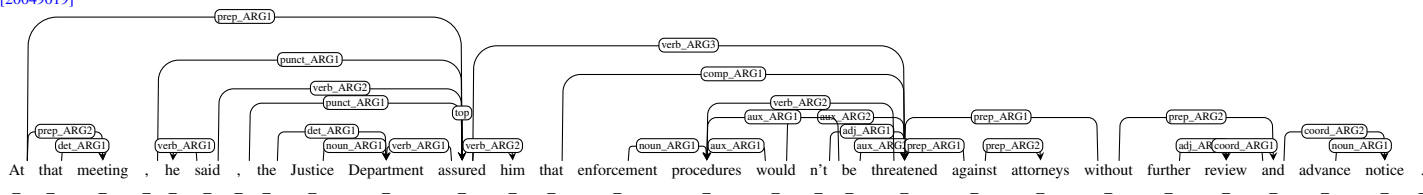

[20049014]

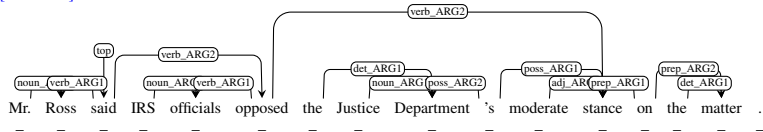

[20049018]

[20049019]

[20049020]

But in the letters sent in recent days , Christopher J. Lezovich of the IRS computing center in Detroit , told attorneys that " failing to voluntarily submit the requested information could result in summons enforcement action being initiated . "

[20049022]

In some cases , the IRS asked for information dating back to forms it received in 1985 .

[20049023]

A spokesman for the IRS confirmed that "there has been correspondence mailed about incomplete 8300s." but he declined to say why the letters were sent to lawyers now.

[20049024]

Individuals familiar with the Justice Department's policy said that Justice officials had n't any knowledge of the IRS's actions in the last week

[20049025]

Lawyers worry that if they provide information about clients, that data could quickly end up in the hands of prosecutors.

[2009026]

Prose
Prosecutors need court permission to obtain the tax returns of an individual or a business.

Diagram illustrating the syntactic structure of the sentence "Prosecutors need court permission to obtain the tax returns of an individual or a business." The diagram shows the hierarchical organization of the sentence into phrases and clauses, with labels for the grammatical functions of the words and phrases.

Labels and functions shown in the diagram:

- verb ARG1
- verb ARG1
- comp MOD
- verb ARG2
- noun ARG1
- comp ARG1
- verb ARG2
- det ARG1
- noun prep ARG1
- prep ARG2
- det ARG1
- coord ARG2
- det ARG1

But they have obtained 8300 forms without court permission and used the information to help develop criminal cases .

Some criminal lawyers speculated that the IRS was sending the letters to test the issue

[illegible]

THE WAR OVER FEDERAL JUDICIAL SALARIES takes a victim .

On Tuesday, the judge called a news conference to say he was quitting effective Dec. 31 to join a San Francisco law firm.

[20049033]

The reason : the refusal of Congress to give federal judges a raise .

Federal judges make $ 89,500 annually ; in February , Congress rejected a bill that would have increased their pay by 50 % .

Judge Ramirez , 44 , said it is unjust for judges to make what they do .

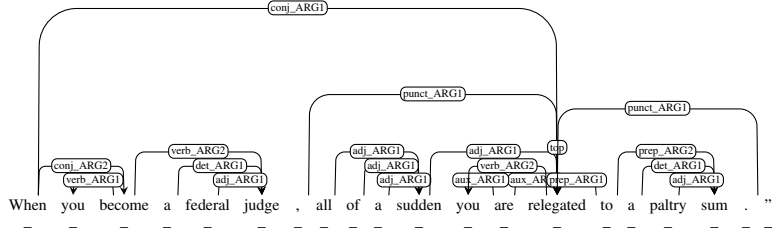

[20049037]

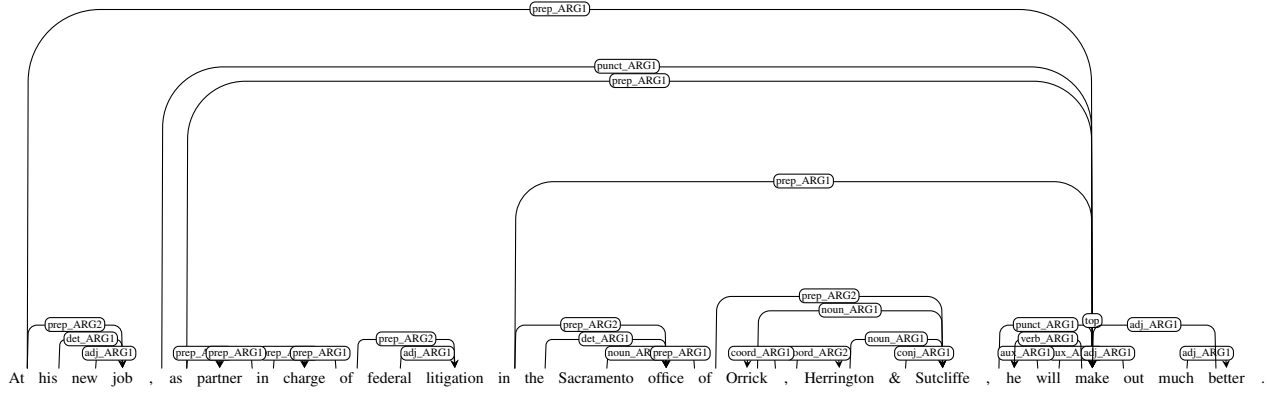

[20049038]

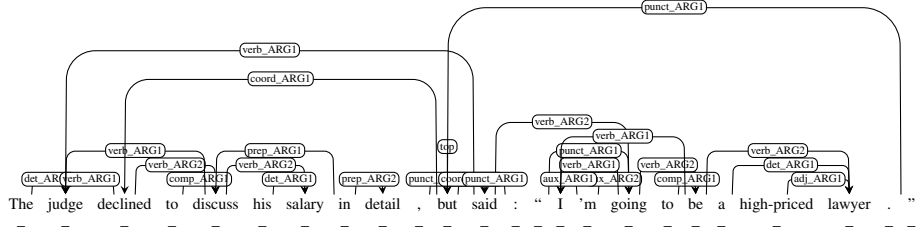

[20049039]

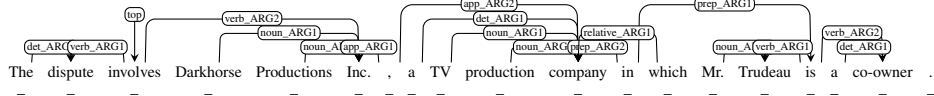

[20049040]

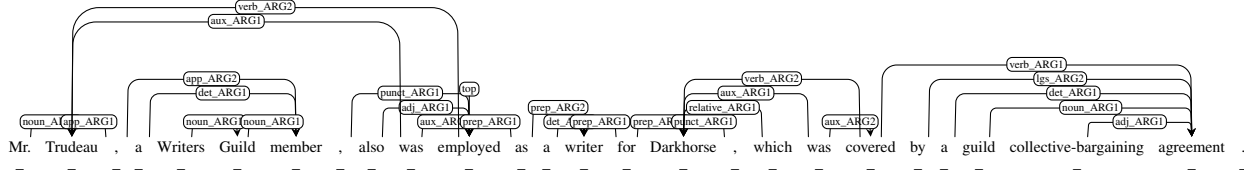

[20049041]

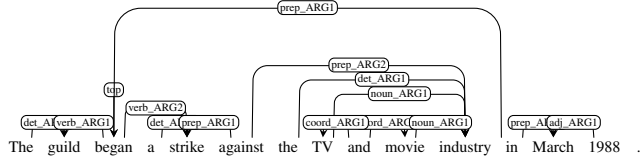

[20049044]

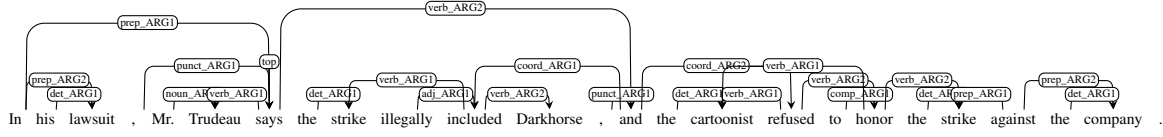

[20049045]

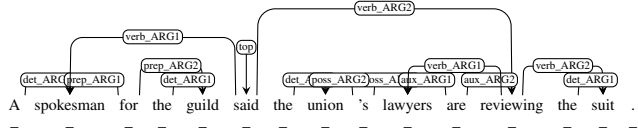

[20049046]

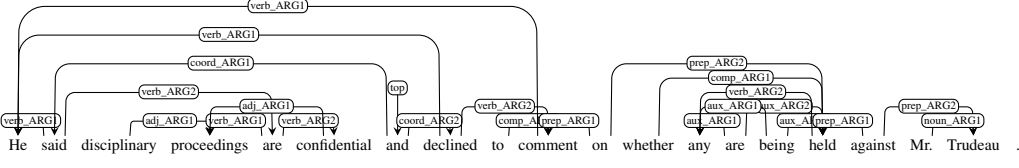

[20049047]

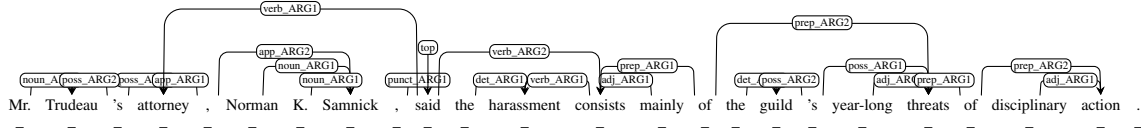

[20049048]

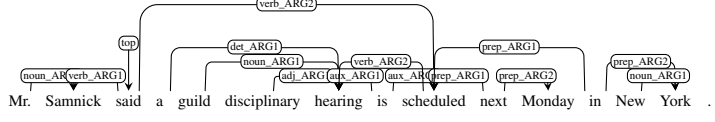

[20049049]

[20049050]

[20049051]

[20049052]

