

Document 1022

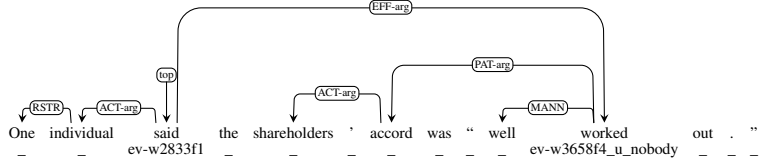

[21022001]

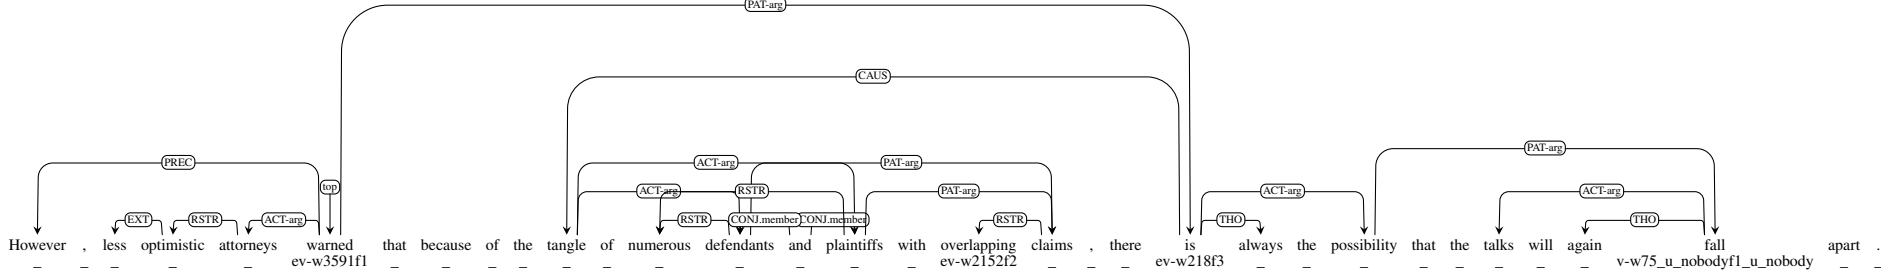

[21022003]

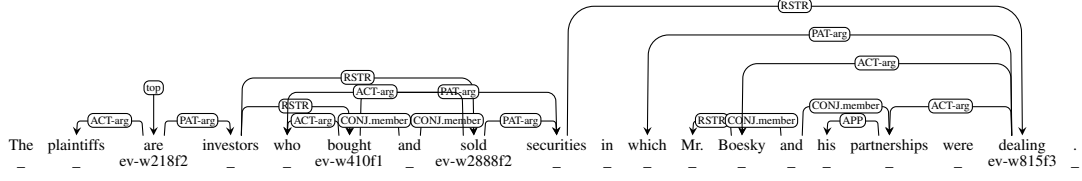

[21022005]

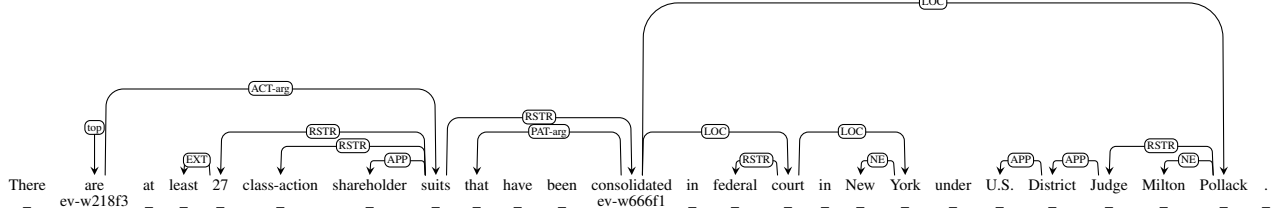

[21022006]

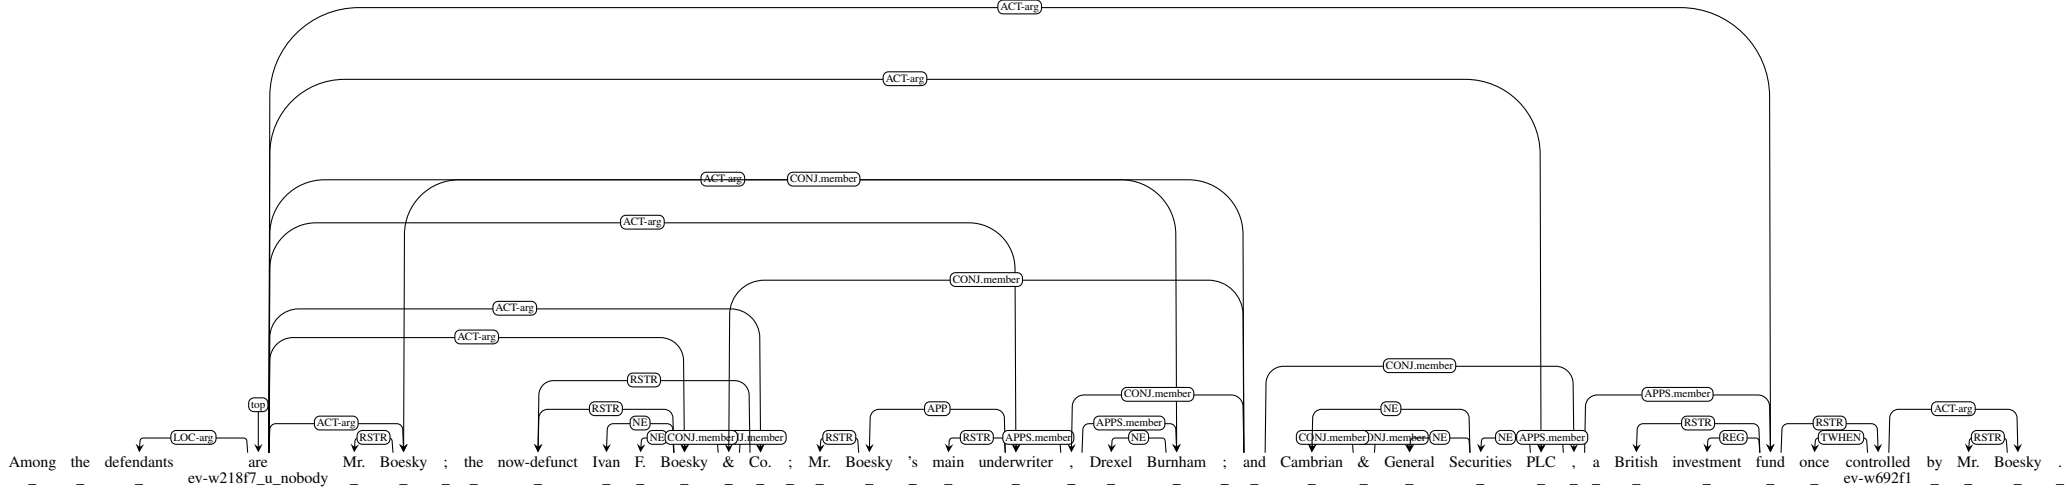

[21022008]

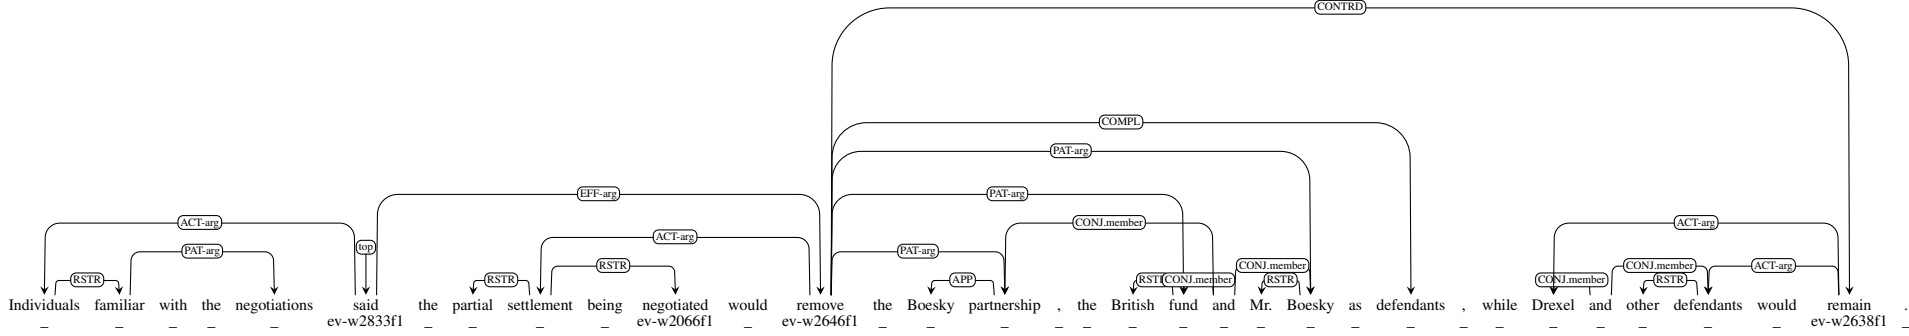

[21022011]

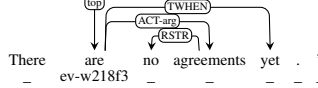

[21022012]

[21022013]

[21022015]

[21022016]

It has been three years since Mr. Boesky, now in prison, agreed to pay a $ 100 million fine to settle the government's charges that he had traded illegally using insider information.

[21022017]

Out of this, the government set up a $ 50 million fund for plaintiffs who can prove their financial losses.

[21022018]

According to William Orbe, an attorney at Grais & Richards, the escrow agents for the fund, as of Sept. 30 the fund amounted to $ 60.5 million.

[21022019]

Separately, attorneys for the 42 or so limited partners have had serious discussions that could lead to the distribution of the partnership's assets.

[21022020]

The limited partners include insurance companies, financial institutions and individual investors.

[21022021]

An agreement with Drexel regarding the limited partners' investments is an essential step toward getting their money back.

[21022022]

This is because a Delaware court earlier this year said that Drexel is entitled to get its money back before or at the same time as the limited partners.

[21022023]

Drexel is owed $ 20 million by the partnership.

[21022024]

An individual familiar with the negotiations said that whatever investments the limited partners do not recoup from the $ 330 million in partnership assets, they will receive from the $ 350 million restitution fund available as a result of Drexel's settlement with the government in December 1988.

[21022025]

Drexel agreed to plead guilty to six felony counts and pay $ 650 million, of which $ 350 million was set aside for shareholders and other plaintiffs, including the limited partners, who claim they were injured by Drexel.

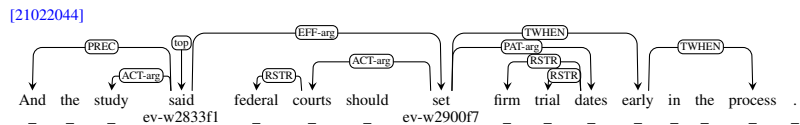

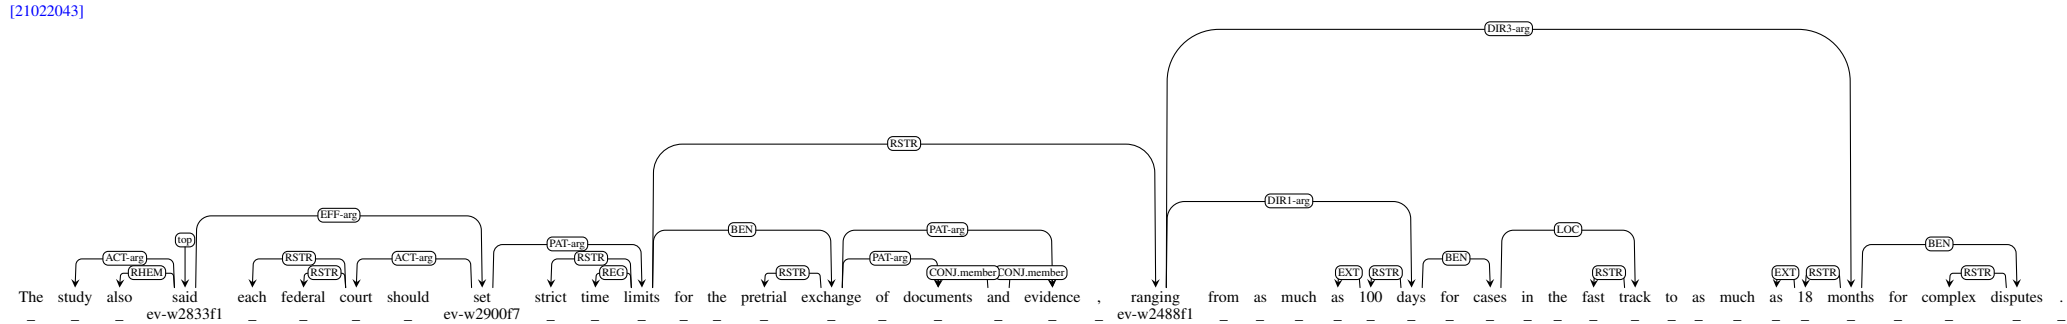

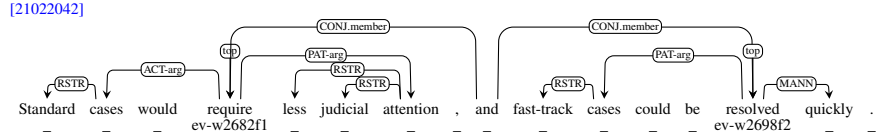

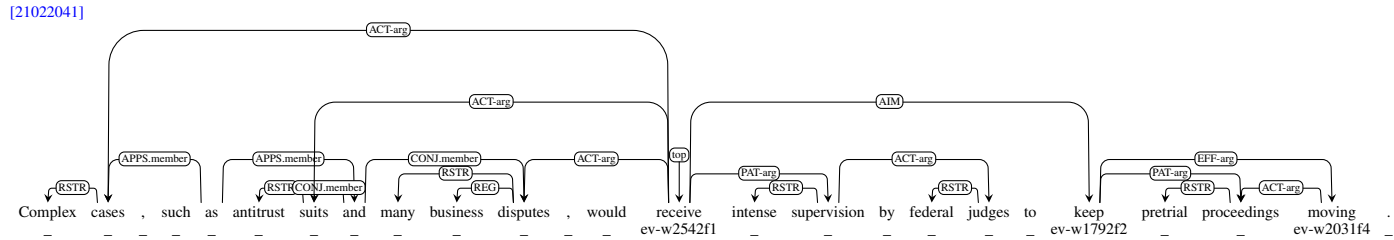

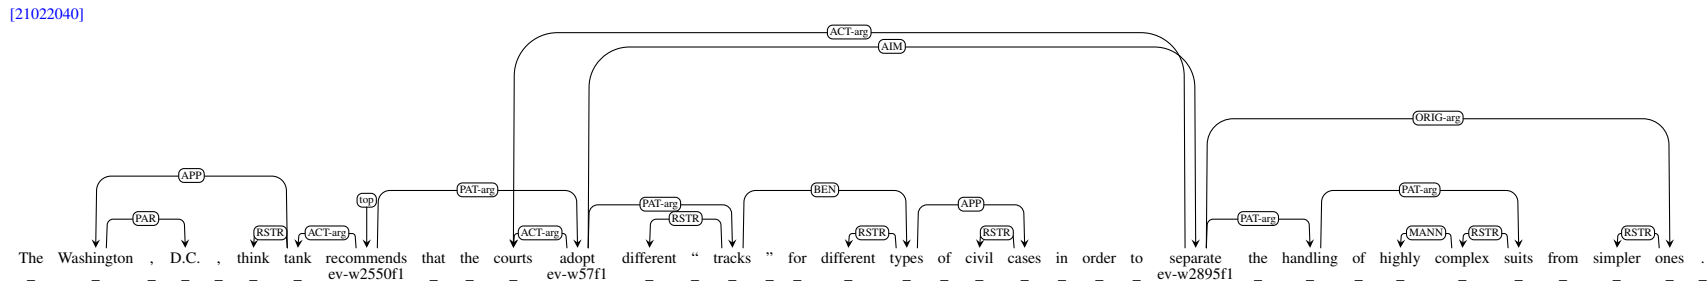

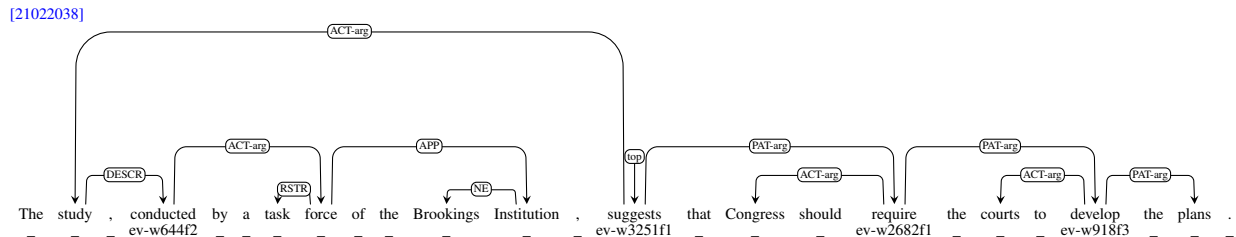

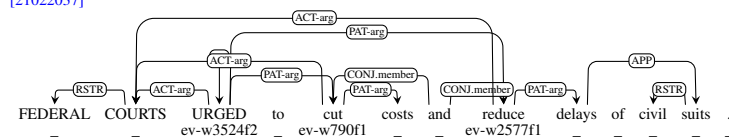

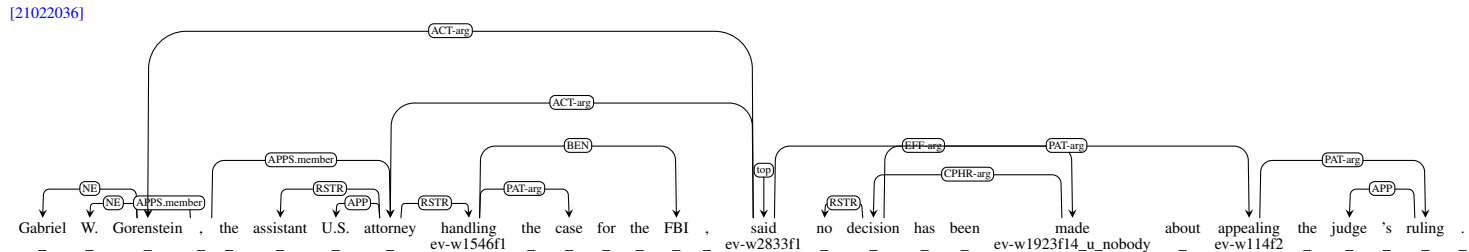

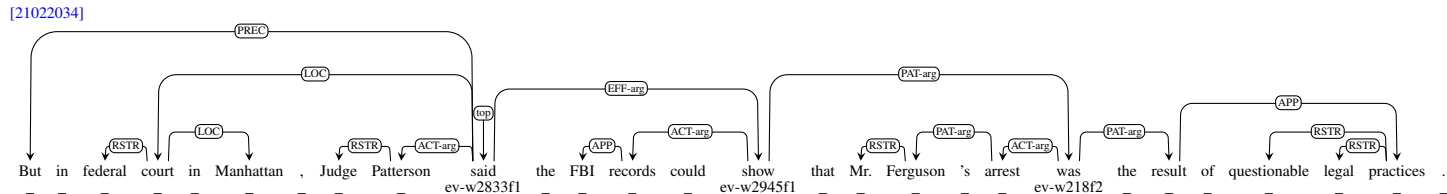

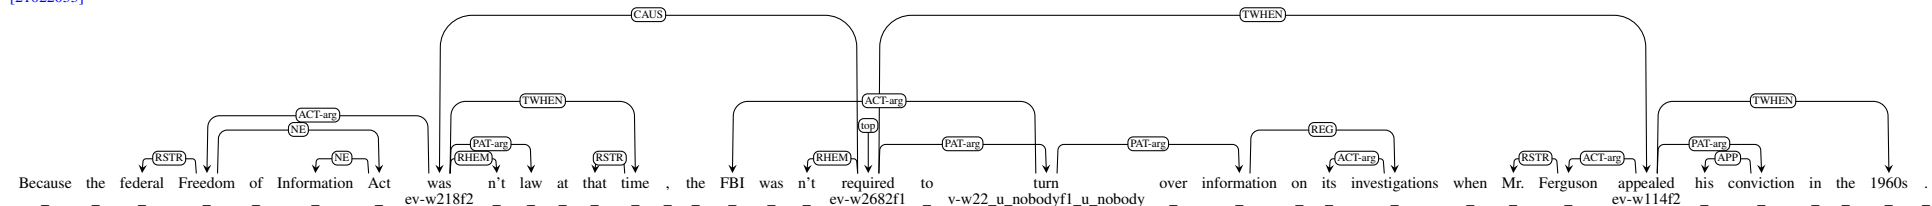

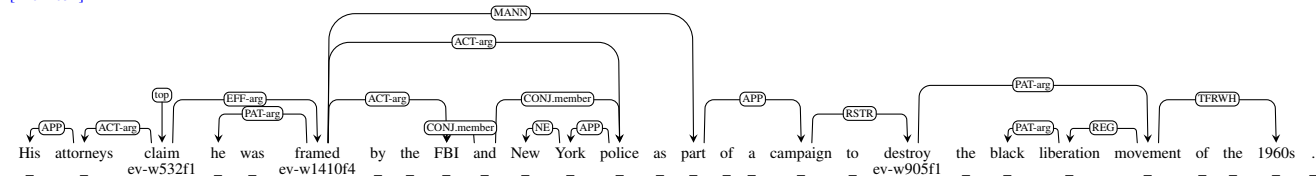

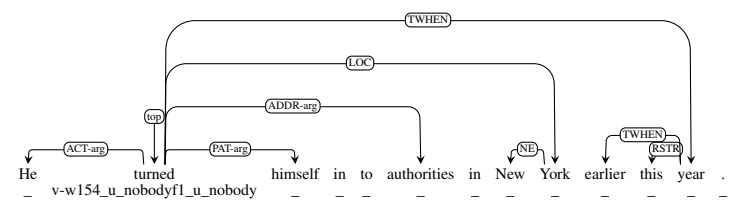

[21022027]

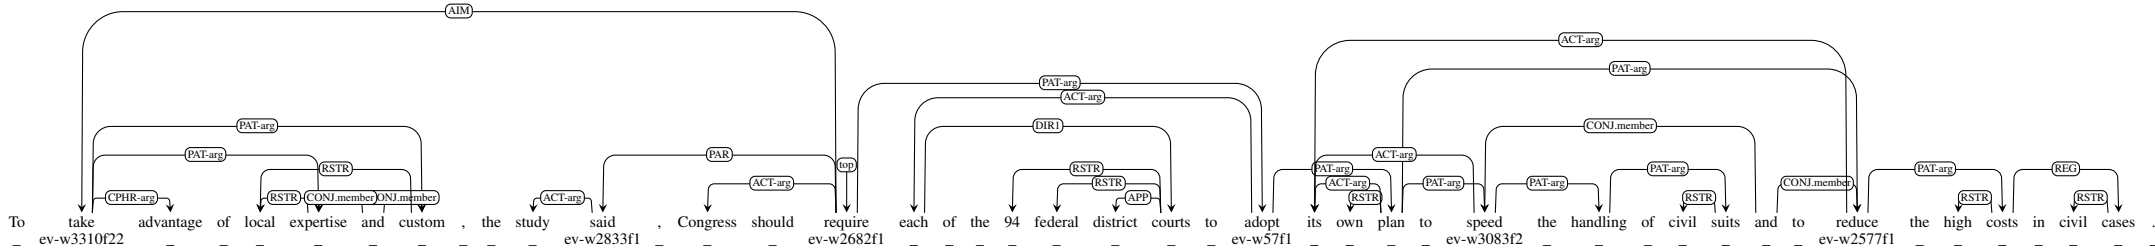

U.S. District Judge Robert P. Patterson Jr. ordered the FBI to immediately begin processing Herman Benjamin Ferguson's request for documents stemming from the agency's investigation of him during the 1960s.

[21022028]

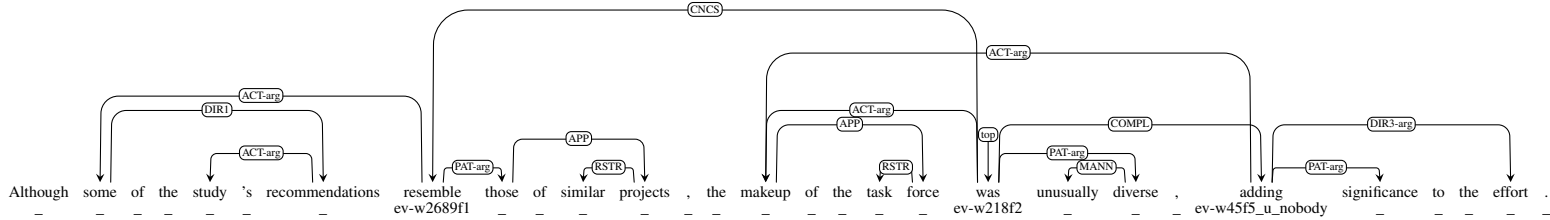

The FBI had said it would not be able to begin processing the request until June.

[21022030]

[21022046]

[21022047]

