Document 1504

```
DIR3-arg
                                                                                                                              AUTH
                                                                                                                                                   √<sup>APP</sup> \
  Mr. Stone thought the discipline was unfair; he believed that his manager wanted to get rid of him for personal reasons.
                                                                                                      (COMPL)—(ACT-arg)
                       At the scheduled time , Mr. Stone entered a conference room in a building near where he worked ev-w1171f1 _ _ _ _ _ _ ev-w3657f5 themselves , the chairman of the panel said : " conj.member (CONJ.member) (CONJ.member
                                                                                                                                                    PAT-arg
     After the three members of the court introduced themselves , the chairman of the panel DISJ.member)
         (ACT-arg) (ACT-arg) (ACT-arg) (PAT-arg)
                                   ask questions as you go ev-w141f2 _ _ _ v-w157_u_nobodyf2_u_nobody (op
   No lawyers or tape recorders were present ev-w218f2
Over a cup of coffee , Mr. Stone told his story .
                                                                      through , the court members asked ev-w141f2 asked ev-w141f2 ev-w2833f1 - ev-w1867f2 ev-w1873f2 = ev-w1573f2 = ev-w1573f2 = ev-w1573f2 = ev-w3318f3 - ev-w3318f3 - ev-w318f3 -
   The chairman promised Mr. Stone a decision within two weeks .
 Bob Stone is a fictional name , but the incident described is real .
It happened at Northrop Corp. in Los Angeles .
[21504015]
                         PAT-arg
[21504017]
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                what I call

ev-w420f6
    These firms are pioneers
```

