Document 1217

```
ACT-arg
(APPS member) (A
                                                                                                                                ACT-arg
                                                                                                                      CONJ.member
 Bond prices surged in reaction to the sell-off in stocks , then eased slightly during the afternoon recovery .
 The dollar finished lower
- ev-w1331f3 _
 [21217005]
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            RSTR
(DIS member) memp(RSTR)

On one or more
                                                                                     (APPS.member)
   | APPS.member |
    , but Ford 's move may derail the talks
                                                                                                                                                                                                                    REAS.member
Car and truck sales slid 20.5 % in mid-October as U.S. manufacturers paid the price for heavy incentives earlier in the year .
  General Motors continued to be hardest hit ev-w1595f3
 [21217011]
                                                                                                                        ——(ACT-arg)
——(COMPL)——
                                                                                                                   TWHEN
   Durable goods orders slipped 0.1 % in September , reflecting weakening auto demand after a spurt of orders for new 1990 models .
 [21217012]
 Excluding transportation items , orders rose 1.8 % .
 [21217013]
                                                                                                                                                                                             PAT-arg
                                                                                                                                                                                             p to 45 million shares , value from Northeast Utilities , likely spurring a new round of bidding for the utility
```

1

