Document 0231

```
RSTR RSTR THO
  Tokyo stocks rebounded Tuesday from two consecutive daily losses in relatively active dealings .
[20231002]
                                                                           , while trading in Frankfurt , West Germany , ended higher .
                                                                                                                                                                                             PAT-arg
                                                                                                                                                                                  ____DIFF)_____
                                                                                          S selected issues ev-w2886f1 ev-w218f4_u_nobody ev-
The index fell 109.85 Monday .
 Small-lot buying targeted at incentive-backed issues pushed up the Nikkei .
                                                                                       ACT-arg
But other sectors failed to attract investor interest and remained sluggish ev-w1270f2 ev-w163f1 ev-w12638f2 ev-w1923f2 ev-w1923f2 ev-w1923f2 ev-w115f2 ev-w115f2
                                                                                                               ACT-arg
Individuals and corporations , as well as dealers trading for their own account , actively bought Tuesday ev-w410f1
The Tokyo Stock Price Index of all issues listed ev-w1877f3 in the First Section , which declined 5.16 on Monday ,
Second Section volume was estimated at 14 million shares , unchanged from Monday .
 Institutional investors mostly remained on the sidelines Tuesday .
```

1

